Here is how you would cite the entry for “food baby” from an online dictionary accessed October 22, 2013:

Citation:
Citing a general website article with an author

Take note!
Many sources have APA citation formats for their online versions (e.g., online newspapers, dictionaries and encyclopedias). Check out our other guides or the APA Publication Manual (6th ed.) first to see if there is a citation for a specific source type in an online format.

Structure:
Author, F. M. (Year, Month Date of publication). Article title. Retrieved from URL

*Only include the retrieval date if the content is likely to change over time (such as wikis). If necessary, include the retrieval month date, year, (in that order) between “Retrieved” and “from URL” in the last segment of the citation.

When a website does not have an article title, replace it in the citation with the website title.

Citation:
Citing a general website article with no author

Take note!
Many sources have APA citation formats for their online versions (e.g., online newspapers, dictionaries and encyclopedias). Check our other guides, or the APA Publication Manual (6th ed.) first to see if there is a citation for citing a specific source type in an online format.

Structure:
